

Professor Aram Yang

Clinical Assistant Professor, Dept. of Pediatric Endocrinology, Genetics, and Metabolism, Kangbuk Samsung Hospital, Sungkyunkwan University School of Medicine, Seoul, Korea

Professor Yang is a Clinical Assistant Professor, Department of Pediatric Endocrinology, Genetics, and Metabolism, Sungkyunkwan University School of Medicine, Kangbuk Samsung Medical Center.

She graduated from the college of Medicine at Chungnam National University in 2011 and completed her clinical training at Catholic Medical Center in 2012 and Samsung Medical Center in 2016 with honor.

Professor Yang has over 9 years of experience in the field - over 6 years of which have been spent at Samsung Medical Center and 1 year of which have been spent at Inha university hospital. She specializes in pediatric endocrine, genetics and inherited metabolic disease.

Professor Yang has more than 15 published peer-reviewed articles and her main research interests are pediatric rare disease, genetic metabolism disease and endocrine characteristics disease. She is also an active member of many national academic societies in the field of pediatric endocrinology.

